I. Introduction

In March, 2009, the mortgage meltdown took down WesCorp, like it did homeowners, pension funds, banks, investment banks, independent mortgage brokers, real estate developers, AIG, and retail credit unions. It also surprised the NCUA, WesCorp's in-house regulator and overseer, which had been monitoring and signing off on WesCorp's investments. Yet, with the luxury of hindsight, the NCUA sued WesCorp's directors and officers in an attempt to hold them exclusively responsible for the paper losses to WesCorp stemming from this unprecedented, systemic financial collapse.¹

In their motion to dismiss, the directors explain why the business judgment rule shields them from liability. In their own motion, the officers explain why, even taking all of the NCUA's allegations as true, they did not breach their fiduciary duties. Defendant Todd Lane joins and supports in full the officer defendants' motion. Those motions detail how all the directors and officers acted with the care and diligence required of them and fulfilled their duties to WesCorp.

Lane also moves separately to explain two additional reasons why the NCUA's claim for breach of fiduciary duty against him cannot survive. First, the Complaint violates Rule 8 and Twombly/Iqbal by merely lumping allegations against Lane with those against other defendants. Second, the Complaint does not allege facts sufficient to state a claim that Lane was responsible for the investment decisions that allegedly caused WesCorp's losses. This is even more apparent when considering the documents referred to in the Complaint, which reflect that Lane had no role in the investment decisions or concentration limits on investments at WesCorp. In sum, the Complaint does not state a claim for ¹ The Plaintiff in this case is the National Credit Union Administration Board, or the “NCUA.” The NCUA has adopted WesCorp’s claims and is now on its Second Amended Complaint, or “Complaint,” which this brief references by paragraph ¶ throughout.

1 breach of fiduciary duty against Lane, and the First Claim for Relief must 2 therefore be dismissed.

4 II. Facts

5 A. Procedural Background

6 Lane moved to dismiss the NCUA's first complaint against him on the 7 grounds that the NCUA had not described Lane's role at WesCorp, or his 8 responsibility for the decisions that allegedly led to its collapse. The Court 9 granted Lane's motion, with leave to amend, holding that "the factual allegations 10 demonstrating Lane's role and participation must be improved in order to state a 11 plausible claim for relief" for breach of fiduciary duties. Tentative Ruling, Dec.
12 20, 2010, at 18 ("Dec. 20 Ruling") (underlining in original, bolding added).

13 The Court relied on Iqbal, as well as the California Supreme Court's 14 analysis of corporate duties in Frances T., to hold that "the plausibility 15 requirement enunciated in Twombly is to be applied on a defendant-by-defendant 16 basis." Id. (citing Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct 1937, 1942–43, 1949 (2009); 17 Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n, 42 Cal. 3d 490, 508(1986)). The Court 18 found that the NCUA's first amended complaint improperly "lumps together 19 individual defendants with admittedly differentiated roles and responsibilities." 20 Id. The Court's final order noted that WesCorp had divided responsibility for 21 management among people and committees, and that to hold one group 22 responsible for another's area was doubtful: "the Court would seemingly also have 23 to question why a budget committee should be held responsible for the effect of 24 investment decisions." Order, Jan. 31, 2011, at 2 ("Jan. 31 Order") (emphasis in 25 original). Even with its amendments, the Complaint does not—because it 26 cannot—remedy these shortcomings.

27 B. The Cause of WesCorp's Losses.

28 The Complaint explicitly and repeatedly blames WesCorp's (paper) losses

1 on one thing: the over-concentration of investments in private-label mortgage-2 based securities, particularly option adjustable-rate mortgages. All of the alleged 3 damages stem from that single act. See, e.g. ¶¶ 33–40; 121–131; 152. If 4 WesCorp had diversified its portfolio away from private-label mortgage-backed 5 securities, the Complaint argues, we wouldn’t be here today. ¶ 41 (“If 6 [defendants] had imposed prudent concentration limits on its private label MBS .
7 . . almost all of this loss would have been avoided.”). Similarly, the alleged 8 breaches of duties by WesCorp’s directors and officers derive solely from this 9 alleged over-concentration in MBS investments. See, e.g., ¶ 124 (officers “did not 10 recommend any concentration limits for Option ARM MBS”); ¶ 133 (officers 11 “did not perform a thorough review of the credit risk of private label MBS 12 purchases”).²

13 C. The Division of Roles and Responsibilities at WesCorp.

14 1. The Investment Department.

15 Lane was not directly responsible for investment decisions or concentration 16 limits on investments. Instead, according to the Complaint, WesCorp had an 17 Investment Department that was headed and supervised by Robert Burrell, the 18 company’s Chief Investment Officer from 2000 to March 2009. ¶¶ 9, 56. The 19 Complaint specifically alleges that Burrell “was responsible for the development 20 and implementation of all balance sheet management strategies, which included 21 WesCorp’s investment strategies.” ¶ 56 (emphasis added). He was the “primary 22 manager” of the investment portfolio, and he “was responsible for the safety and

23

24 ² Tangentially, the Complaint alleges that the proposed budgets and the alleged failure to 25 review new security types were also linked to WesCorp’s losses. The officers’ motion to 26 dismiss thoroughly explains why those actions, even if true, were not fiduciary breaches. Part 27 V(C). Because those alleged breaches simply allowed the over-concentration to take place, 28 they do not state separate grounds for WesCorp’s losses apart from overconcentration. See, e.g. ¶¶ 88–89 (budgeting issues linked to concentration risk); ¶¶ 124–131 (lack of review of new securities linked to concentration limits).

1 soundness of that portfolio.” Id. He had responsibility to ensure that “all 2 investments would provide appropriate levels of safety” ¶ 56) and returns. ¶ 91.
3 He also had “a duty to manage WesCorp’s investment portfolio and its investing 4 activities in a safe and sound manner.” ¶ 190. If WesCorp had any policies 5 related to investments, Burrell was responsible for ensuring their compliance. Id.
6 This made Burrell “responsible for proposing investment concentration limits for 7 its investment portfolio, to ensure that the portfolio was properly diversified to 8 minimize risk” (¶ 110) and “to avoid over-concentrations of credit risk in 9 WesCorp’s investment portfolio.” ¶ 190. In carrying out this duty, Burrell, with 10 Chief Executive Officer Robert Siravo, “routinely proposed . . . amendments 11 raising the concentration limits for the MBS.” ¶ 112. Burrell also “had the duty 12 to ensure a thorough review of each proposed security purchase for credit risk.” ¶ 13 132.

14 The Complaint also specifically alleges that Burrell assisted Lane and 15 Siravo in the budgeting process. ¶ 86. While those two, according to the 16 Complaint, had to understand how WesCorp would achieve the investment 17 income laid out in the budget, it was Burrell’s “duty to provide . . . to Siravo and 18 Lane” “the credit and financial risks that the budget contained.” Id.

19 2. The Credit Risk Department.

20 According to the Complaint, WesCorp also had an executive in charge of 21 investment risk: Timothy Sidley, who was the Vice President for Risk 22 Assessment and Chief Risk Officer in charge of investment credit services from 23 Jun 1998 until April 2011. ¶ 10. The Complaint specifically alleges that Sidley 24 was “responsible for the implementation of WesCorp’s investment credit policies 25 and procedures.” He was also “responsible for the investment risk monitoring 26 process, systems, and procedures.” ¶ 58. With Burrell, Sidley was responsible for 27 “proposing investment concentration limits for [WesCorp’s] investment portfolio, 28 to ensure that the portfolio was properly diversified to minimize investment risk”

1 (¶ 110), as well as the duty to “ensure a thorough review of each proposed security 2 purchase for credit risk.” ¶¶ 132, 194 (Sidley had “a duty to ensure that . . . the 3 collateral underlying the security was appropriately considered, . . . and to advise 4 the ALCO and the board of increased credit risk to WesCorp from the 5 concentration of Option ARM MBS and lower tranche AAA private label MRS 6 in its portfolio.”).

7 3. The Board.

8 According to the Complaint, WesCorp’s Board had complete decision-9 making authority on WesCorp’s investments and credit policies. WesCorp’s 10 bylaws required the Board of Directors to adopt policies regarding WesCorp’s 11 “investment strategies” to ensure that “WesCorp was being operated in a safe and 12 sound manner.” ¶ 52. The Board was “responsible for setting investment 13 policies” (¶ 108), approving WesCorp’s budgets (¶ 87), setting “reasonable and 14 supportable concentration limits for limited liquidity investments” (¶ 105), and 15 implementing “a credit risk management policy commensurate with the 16 investment risks and activities WesCorp was undertaking.” ¶ 105.

17 The Board also had an Asset and Liability Committee (“ALCO”) made up 18 of directors. ¶ 23. A “primary purpose” of ALCO was to “ensure that 19 investment of funds would be accomplished in a safe and secure manner, 20 particularly with respect to limiting WesCorp’s exposure to market and 21 operational risks.” ¶ 24. ALCO “provided overall management direction for 22 WesCorp’s investment strategy and the types and levels of risk WesCorp’s 23 investments exposed [WesCorp] to.” ¶ 25. This committee was responsible for 24 “the review and recommendation of proposed changes to WesCorp’s asset and 25 liability policies and strategies, the review of and recommendations for existing 26 and proposed concentration limits, and the review of and recommendations for 27 investment security purchases and sales.” ¶ 25. The WesCorp policies that its 28 “investments were to provide earnings consistent with maintaining safety and

1 soundness" were the responsibility of ALCO. ¶ 24. All members of the Board, 2 whether on ALCO or not, received the monthly ALCO materials. ¶ 26.

3 WesCorp also had a budget committee made up of directors. This 4 committee reviewed WesCorp's annual budget, and "recommended it before it 5 was approved by the board." ¶¶ 27, 85. The members of the budget committee 6 had a "duty to inform themselves about the budget projections, and in particular 7 the basis for and potential risks to WesCorp of budgeting increases in investment 8 income and net interest income." ¶ 87.

9 4. Todd Lane's Role Within WesCorp.

10 According to the Complaint, Lane was WesCorp's Chief Financial Officer 11 from March 1998 to April 2008 (nearly a year before WesCorp was conservated by 12 the NCUA). ¶ 8. As CFO, the Complaint describes two specific duties that 13 Lane had. He handled WesCorp's "financial statements and financial 14 operations." ¶ 55. He also had a large role in the budgeting process, bearing 15 "primary responsibility" for drafting annual budgets for the Board's review. ¶¶ 16 55, 85, 86, 189.

17 Outside of those two duties—neither of which involved deciding types or 18 concentration levels of investments, or credit risk—the Complaint only offers 19 vague allegations that Lane had "general supervisory responsibility at WesCorp" 20 (¶ 55) and certain general duties "as a member of WesCorp's Executive Team 21 actively managing and directing the business strategy and affairs of WesCorp." ¶ 22 189.

23 5. The ALCO Books Illustrate WesCorp's Division of Responsibility.

24 The ALCO meetings, as described in the minutes in the accompanying 25 ALCO packages, reveal the division of roles and responsibilities at WesCorp.
26 According to the Complaint, ALCO played a central role in WesCorp's alleged 27 collapse because it was responsible for "the review of and recommendations for 28 existing and proposed concentration limits." ¶ 25.

1 Two things are clear from the minutes of seven ALCO meetings from 2 March 2006 to February 2007 (all of which were relied on in the Complaint).
3 First, Todd Lane was not involved with economic forecasting, investment 4 decision-making, credit-risk evaluation, or setting concentration limits. Those 5 tasks fell onto the shoulders of other officers. For example, in each meeting, 6 Sidley talked about interest-rate risk (reflecting his role as Chief Risk Officer) 7 while Burrell discussed economic and interest rate forecasts (reflecting his role as 8 Chief Investment Officer). When he said anything at all, Lane talked about 9 membership totals and once noted that the capital ratio at WesCorp had reached 10 its internal policy limit (reflecting his role as Chief Financial Officer). On two 11 occasions Lane submitted requests that were the committee voted on and 12 approved to then go to the Board for its approval.

13 The second thing that is clear is that the officers and staff of WesCorp 14 provided as much information as possible to the Board. They thoroughly 15 analyzed the available data and made their best recommendations to the committee 16 and the Board based on that data. The Board—the only entity with decision-17 making authority—then made fully informed decisions.³ What follows are brief 18 descriptions of these ALCO meetings:

19 • March 28, 2006. Burrell laid out economic and market conditions, noting 20 the “weakening housing market” but stating that “the economy remains strong.”
21 Lane’s RJD at 4 [Directors’ RJD at 11].⁴ Burrell also spoke regarding new

22
23 ³ A crippling, uncontested fact for the NCUA is that the officers only had the power to inform 24 the Board and recommend certain actions—they had no actual power to do anything. See, 25 e.g., ¶ 27 (budget approved by Board); ¶ 105 (concentration limits and credit-risk 26 management policies set by Board). As the Directors’ judicially noticed documents show, 27 the officers provided all the information available for the Board to make informed, prudent decisions at the time. The entire Complaint against the officers amounts to holding them responsible for decisions they had no authority to make.

28 ⁴ Lane both joins the Directors’ Request for Judicial Notice and submits his own (“Lane’s RJD”). These documents are limited to the minutes of the ALCO meetings referenced in

1 strategies for the portfolio's target balance and sales of securities, noting that "we 2 may be asking to increase the limit on 'AAA rated' CMBS from 200% to 250% of 3 Total Capital to provide the flexibility in managing this area." Id. at 5 [12].
4 Sidley delivered a review of interest-rate risk and explained that in the previous 5 month "a prepayment shock test was conducted" "to measure the impact of 6 changing prepayment speeds on the [Net Economic Value]." Id. at 4 [11].
7 Although Lane was present at the meeting, he didn't speak. Id.

8 • August 22, 2006. Burrell spoke regarding the economic and interest rate 9 forecast, and Sidley spoke about interest-rate risk. Lane's RJD at 9 [Directors' 10 RJD at 143]. The VP Portfolio Manager discussed "Strategies" and said "our 11 strategy is to leverage the balance sheet as much as possible." Id. at 10 [144].
12 The VP Balance Sheet Management led the "Business & Liquidity Forecast." Id.
13 Lane was again present, and again he didn't speak.

14 • September 19, 2006. Sidley delivered another review of interest-rate risks.
15 Lane's RJD at 14 [Directors' RJD at 245]. Burrell delivered an economic and 16 interest rate outlook. Id. The VP Treasury & Funding delivered a business and 17 liquidity forecast, stating that "we have plenty of room for growth as capital is at a 18 6% level." Id. at 15 [246]. The VP Portfolio Manager spoke about strategies laid 19 out in the 2006 business plan in light of current market conditions, and reiterated 20 that the strategy was to continue to leverage the balance sheet as much as 21 possible. Id. Lane spoke only regarding membership totals by state. Id. at 14 22 [245].

23 • November 28, 2006. Sidley discussed items in the Investment Credit 24 Review and discussed a credit spread shock test. Lane's RJD at 19, 20 [Directors' 25 RJD at 358, 359]. Burrell delivered an economic and interest-rate forecast, and

1 “discussed the request to add new collateral types and the requested policy
2 amendments[.]” Id. at 19, 20 [358, 359]. The VP Balance Sheet Management 3 said that Net Interest Income was below the plan due to actual interest rates 4 being substantially higher than the plan. Id. at 20 [358]. The VP Treasury & 5 Funding said that the net short-term liquidity position had increased due to 6 increasing member balances, and the VP Portfolio Manager stated that the 7 strategy was still to continue to leverage the balance sheet as much as possible. Id.
8 Lane spoke only regarding membership totals by state. Id.

9 • December 19, 2006. Sidley delivered a risk assessment that did not show 10 immediate cause for concern. Lane’s RJN at 24 [Directors’ RJN at 457] 11 (“WesCorp is most sensitive in the 2 to 5 year segment. If interest rates move up 12 10 basis points, NEV declines by $1 million at the 3 year point on the curve.
13 This represents low risk to changes in rate and the structure of the yield curve.”).
14 The SVP Business Development & Marketing, and the VP Treasury & Funding 15 spoke about liquidity as affected by declining loan demand. Id. at 25 [458] 16 (“increasing liquidity is mainly coming from declining loan demand rather than 17 share growth”). The VP Portfolio Manager and VP Balance Sheet Management 18 spoke regarding new securities purchases and interest-rate swaps. Id. As usual, 19 Burrell discussed an economic and interest rate forecast, and spoke regarding 20 investment spreads. Id. at 24, 25 [457, 458]. Lane spoke only to request and 21 receive approval for the sale and purchase of CU Business Partners, LLC shares.
22 Id. at 25 [458].

23 • January 23, 2007. At this ALCO meeting, like all the others, Sidley and 24 Burrell delivered a risk assessment. Lane’s RJN at 29 [Directors’ RJN at 556].
25 Burrell also delivered an economic and interest rate forecast, and spoke regarding 26 the 1-month LIBOR and overnight funds rates. Id. at 29, 30 [556, 557]. The 27 S.VP Business Development & Marketing and the VP Treasury & Funding 28 discussed member business activity and the continuing decline of member loan

1 balances. Id. at 30 [557]. The VP Balance Sheet Management spoke about Net 2 Interest Income projections; the VP Treasury & Funding discussed a decrease in 3 the net short-term liquidity position, and the VP Portfolio Manager spoke again 4 about securities purchases and interest rate swaps. Id. Burrell requested that the 5 Net Interest Income limit on the +300 basis point be temporarily increased 6 through April 2007, and this was voted on and recommended to the Board. Id. at 7 [556, 557]. Addressing the Business Forecast part of the meeting, Lane 8 “indicated that the capital ratio was below the 6% internal policy limit, and 9 requested waiver for the capital ratio to decline below the internal 6% policy limit 10 from December 2006 to May 2007.” Id. at 30 [557]. ALCO voted on this 11 waiver and recommended it to the Board. Id.

12 • February 25, 2007. Sidley gave a review of interest rate risk and Burrell 13 gave an economic and interest-rate forecast. Lane’s RJP at 34 [Directors’ RJP at 14 659]. Burrell also discussed member business activity, Net Interest Income 15 forecasts, WesCorp’s liquidity, and investment strategy. Id. at 35 [660] (“The 16 strategy is to continue to leverage the balance sheet as much as possible”). Lane 17 was present at the meeting, but didn’t speak. Id. at 34 [659].

18 In sum, the facts alleged and the documents cited by the NCUA in its second 19 amended complaint make clear that Lane was not responsible for, nor involved in, 20 investment decisions or investment concentration limits at WesCorp. The 21 NCUA has not alleged facts to state a viable claim against him for breach of 22 fiduciary duty, and the NCUA cannot do so.

23 III. Legal Standard

24 A motion to dismiss should be granted if the plaintiff fails to plead 25 “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Bell Atl. Corp.
26 v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). “Where a complaint pleads facts that are 27 merely consistent with a defendant’s liability, it stops short of [demonstrating an] 28 . . . entitlement to relief.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009) (internal

1 citations and quotations omitted). The Court is not required to accept legal 2 conclusions as true. Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. at 1949. Allegations of duties are 3 legal conclusions and, therefore, the Court need not accept them as true. See 4 Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal., 17 Cal. 3d 425, 434 (1976) (“[L]egal duties 5 are not discoverable facts of nature, but merely conclusory expressions that, in 6 cases of a particular type, liability should be imposed for damage done.”).

7 IV. Argument

8 A. The Complaint Fails Iqbal's Standard Under Rule 8.

9 The Complaint does not meet the Twombly-Iqbal pleading standard for 10 two reasons. First, it impermissibly lumps Lane with two other defendants. See 11 Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. at 1949 (plaintiff must plead “factual content that allows the 12 court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the 13 misconduct alleged”). Second, the Complaint’s allegations against Lane are 14 implausible. See at 1950 (“factual content” in complaint must lead to a “plausible” 15 claim, leaving the Court with “a content-specific task that requires the reviewing 16 court to draw on its judicial experience and common sense.”). Considering the 17 very documents the NCUA relies on to support them, the Complaint’s allegations 18 about Lane’s supposed responsibility for investments—specifically, types of 19 investments and concentration limits—are meritless.

20 1. The Complaint Impermissibly Lumps Allegations Against Lane with 21 Ones Against the Other Officers.

22 As for the “lumping,” the Court granted Lane’s initial motion to dismiss 23 because the NCUA had not demonstrated “Lane’s role and participation” in the 24 alleged fiduciary breaches. Dec. 20 Ruling, at 18 (emphasis in original). The 25 Court cautioned that the NCUA must plead defendant-specific allegations 26 against Lane to survive Iqbal. Id. The new Complaint does not do this, and the 27 First Claim for Relief therefore must be dismissed.

28

1 The Complaint actually flouts the specificity requirements of Iqbal. After 2 enumerating the specific duties of each officer (¶¶ 53–56), the Complaint drops 3 this all-inclusive bomb:

4 In addition to these individual responsibilities, the NCUA is 5 informed and believes that Siravo, Lane, and Burrell managed 6 WesCorp collaboratively and together determined and implemented 7 its overall business strategies, including its strategies of significantly increasing investment income by investing in higher-yielding securities and by substantial borrowing.

8 ¶ 57.⁵ See also ¶ 191 (three officers “collectively had responsibility . . .”); ¶ 110
9 (“The other Officer Defendants, by virtue of their offices and their membership
10 on the ALCO and ALSC, were also responsible for recommending investment 11 concentration limits.”).

12 The Complaint then goes on to allege that these three officers were jointly 13 responsible for everything that transpired at WesCorp—despite, as described 14 above, the rigid, specific, and key divisions of roles and responsibilities at 15 WesCorp. See, e.g., ¶ 60 (the three “were responsible for supervising WesCorp’s 16 investments and recommending policies and investment strategies and for 17 ensuring the safety and soundness of WesCorp’s asset and liability activities, 18 including its investment activities”); ¶ 96 (“Siravo, Lane and Burrell were aware 19 that the investment credit spreads for private label MBS had been generally 20 shrinking”); ¶ 103 (“The failure of Siravo, Lane and Burrell to discuss the 21 increase in investment risk entailed in the proposed budgets with the budget

23 24 ⁵ The NCUA possesses all of WesCorp’s documents and still employs many of its people. It is 25 unfathomable that the NCUA would need to rely on “information and belief” for any 26 allegation. It is especially disturbing with respect to this one, as it reflects a blatant attempt to 27 circumvent the Court’s earlier ruling. Surely if the NCUA had any documents or any facts to 28 support allegations that Lane was responsible for investment decisions, credit risk, or concentration limits, it would set forth the factual basis for such an allegation, rather than base it on what the “NCUA is informed and believes.” But even with this allegation, the Complaint still does not (because it cannot) connect a strategy for growth with participation in actual decisions and decision-making authority for concentration limits or investment type.

1 committee and the board was below the standard of care that these officers owed
2 to WesCorp.”). The First Claim for Relief even lumps their alleged duties of care 3 together. ¶ 192.

4 As the Court already recognized, this type of pleading is impermissible.
5 Dec. 20 Ruling at 18. Lane’s liability to WesCorp is premised on allegations that 6 are not specific to him, and therefore the First Claim for Relief should be 7 dismissed.

8 2. The Complaint’s Allegations Against Lane Are Implausible.

9 The Complaint’s allegations as to Lane are also implausible. The 10 Complaint states that Lane had two specific duties at WesCorp: (1) to handle the 11 financial statements and financial operations and (2) to craft a budget to submit 12 to the budget committee for approval. ¶¶ 55, 85, 86, 189. To successfully plead 13 a fiduciary breach against Lane, the Complaint must link those actual duties to 14 the cause of the losses that WesCorp suffered, i.e., not having sufficient 15 concentration limits on private-label mortgaged-backed securities.

16 The Complaint doesn’t even try to link the WesCorp’s financial statements 17 and financial operations to its investment losses. As for the budget, the Court has 18 already pointed out the implausibility of holding the budgeting process 19 responsible for investment decisions. Jan. 31 Order, at 2. This has not deterred 20 the NCUA from still hanging much of its argument for Lane’s liability on the 21 allegation that he did not tell the Board that expenses would have to be 22 matched with investment income. ¶¶ 87–89. According to the NCUA, the 23 budgeting tail wagged the investment selection dog. Leaving aside for a moment 24 the factually wrong idea that the company’s total budget determined its 25 investment income—as opposed to its investment income dictating the total 26 budget, as was the case—the NCUA is effectively accusing the Board of being 27 devoid of all sense (business or otherwise). The Complaint admits that 28 WesCorp’s expenses were covered by investment income. ¶ 87. If that’s true,

1 then any information on expenses necessarily relates to investments. The NCUA
2 alleges the opposite—that the Budget Committee and Board saw expense figures 3 and had no clue that income would have to match. See ¶ 95 (“The materials that 4 Siravo, Lane and Burrell supplied the budget committee about the budgets
5 contained no information about what changes to WesCorp’s investment portfolio 6 would be required”); ¶ 100 (“Siravo, Lane and Burrell were obligated to 7 explain to the budget committee and the board how adoption of the 2006 and 8 2007 budgets would materially affect the risk in WesCorp’s portfolio.”); ¶ 103.
9 Even within the context of the Complaint itself, these are implausible, and 10 insufficient, allegations.

11 Moving from the specific allegations against Lane to the lumped ones, it is 12 also implausible that Lane had actual responsibility for both the financial 13 operations of WesCorp and, essentially, everything else. Yet, the Complaint 14 effectively alleges that Lane wasn’t just the CFO—he was also the Chief 15 Executive Officer, the Chief Investment Officer, and the Chief Risk Officer, 16 because Lane allegedly “had the responsibility to:”

- 17 • “supervise WesCorp’s investing activities and portfolio” [Chief Investment Officer, see ¶¶ 56, 91, 110, 112, 132];
- 18 • “supervise . . . the credit risks WesCorp was exposed to” [Chief Risk Officer, see ¶¶ 58, 110, 132, 194];
- 19 • “to ensure that the policies, budgets and other board actions necessary for WesCorp’s safe and sound operation were recommended and explained to the board” [all three].

20 ¶ 189. Plaintiff’s specific allegations about the roles of Burrell, Sidley and Siravo 21 and basic common sense show that these general allegations about Lane are 22 implausible. See Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. at 1950. It is farcical to suggest that Lane had 23 actual responsibility for financial operations and investments and concentration 24 risk—when the NCUA had an Investment Department and a Risk Assessment 25 Department, employing different executives and staff to carry out separate those 26

28

1 functions.⁶

2 WesCorp was a massive corporate credit union with, for example, $68.5 3 million in operating expenses in 2005, to go with $26.5 billion in total assets. ¶
4 63. As the Complaint belabors, WesCorp grew substantially from 2002 onward.
5 ¶¶ 31–36. Although the Complaint conveniently doesn’t delve into exactly what 6 WesCorp was doing to grow, it offers a few hints. WesCorp “used the income 7 from its investments to expand operations [and] subsidize the other banking 8 services it provided . . .” ¶ 34 (emphasis added). WesCorp, it seems, was 9 getting bigger and using that growth of scale to improve the services it 10 provided—essentially, doing exactly what any successful company does. Lane, as 11 the Complaint and the ALCO minutes show, was involved in the operations side 12 of this growth, but he had nothing to do with the investment and credit risk side.
13 Although unstated in the Complaint, the ALCO minutes suggest that Lane—in 14 addition to his responsibilities for the internal operations of WesCorp—was in 15 charge of the additional retail credit unions that were added to WesCorp’s 16 membership base, which “grew only modestly between January 2002 and 17 November 2008,” increasing by 116, from 1040 to 1156. ¶ 64. Lane’s 18 involvement in the budgeting process dovetails with this role, as Lane would be 19 very familiar with the actual operations of WesCorp. ¶¶ 55, 85, 86, 189.

20 Handing the operations of the country’s largest retail corporate credit union 21 is a big task, which is why that was the only task Lane had. The NCUA asks the 22 Court to find the Complaint “plausible” by accepting two paradoxical premises: 23 (1) that WesCorp had departments and executives whose sole responsibility was 24 to handle investments and credit risk, and who actively participated in those

25 _____
26 ⁶ A quick glace at the ALCO meetings minutes reveals as much. Here is the list of some of the 27 titles of the staff at the November 2006 ALCO meeting: Chief Technical Officer; VP-28 Balance Sheet Management; VP-Portfolio Manager; VP-Operational Integrity; VP-Treasury and Funding; VP/Controller; Director-Internal Audit; VP-Risk Assessment; Liquidity Consultant; and VP-Correspondent services. Lane’s RJD at 19 [Directors’ RJD at 358].

1 areas, and (2) that Lane—who was not involved in either department, and had his 2 own set of independent responsibilities as CFO—also had responsibility to handle 3 investments and credit risk, and actively participated in those areas. If the first 4 premise is true, the second cannot be. Holding Lane responsible for investments 5 and credit risk (or, more specific to the allegations, concentration limits) would be 6 as implausible as holding Burrell and Sidley responsible for the math 7 computations underling WesCorp’s accounting.

8 The Complaint’s implausible allegations are eerily similar to those the 9 Supreme Court rejected in Iqbal. There, the Court rejected allegations that two 10 high-ranking officials (in the midst of “various other defendants”) had violated 11 the plaintiff’s constitutional rights, despite one being accused of being the 12 “principal architect’ of this invidious policy” and the other of being 13 “instrumental’ in adopting and executing it.” Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. at 1944, 1952.
14 The Court found that “given more likely explanations,” the allegations “do not 15 plausibly establish” a claim. Id. at 1951; see also id. at 1950 (“where the well-16 pleaded facts do not permit the court to infer more than the mere possibility of 17 misconduct” it should be dismissed).

18 B. Lane Did Not Breach His Fiduciary Duties to WesCorp.

19 Lane adopts the arguments made in Part V of the officers’ motion to 20 dismiss, which explains why the Complaint does not state a claim for relief 21 against any officer defendant, including Lane, for breach of fiduciary duty.

V. Conclusion

For these reasons, the First Claim for Relief in the Second Amended Complaint should be dismissed without leave to amend.
